Down Pour Predicted Over Half of Stricken Area As Speculators Cover DUST CLOUDS PASS

Damage Caused by Drought and Dust Estimated to Be Millions Each Day

CHICAGO, May 12.—(UP) Skies filled with rain hung over the inland states today with a promise of relief for parched farms and dusty cities suffering from the worst drought of a generation.

Rain fell during the night in Iowa, North and South Dakota and in several parts of Canada.

It was raining today at Fort Dodge, Storm Lake and Carroll, in the heart of the Iowa corn belt and Omaha reported a drenching shower last night. Sioux City, Ia., also reported rain followed by forecasts of a real downpour to-day.

Downpours were predicted for almost half the area where the drought is taking a $2,000,000 daily toll of crops.

Farmers Joyous

Farmers who have watched sprouting crops burn and fertile top soil whirl away in choking dust clouds received for the first time in 45 days a weather bureau promise of rain.

The airplane made its appearance on the San Francisco waterfront. It was used to distribute handbills calling a strikers' mass meeting for Sunday. Some of the bills fell near the armored car used to transport strikebreakers from pier to pier.

Shipowners at San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego reported that partial crews of longshoremen have been recruited and that ships are being loaded or unloaded with only slight delay. Seattle and Portland had greater difficulty in assembling strikebreakers.

With neither side showing a tendency to recede in the dispute over wages and working hours, federal mediation authorities decided to turn to Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's association.

Dust Dispelled

Across a third of the country news of the spreading storm area brought joy. To the wheat region of Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas, the corn belt of Iowa and Illinois, the dairy sections of Wisconsin and Indiana and the cotton fields of the south, the promise of rain meant succor from threatened ruin.

Relief from an unprecedented May heat wave and the gigantic three-day dust storm added to the spirit of encouragement.

Passage of the dust cloud, which powdered New York skyscrapers yesterday with grime before blowing itself out to sea, left clear skies and a sparkling sun.

Damages wreaked by the sifting dust was estimated in the millions of dollars. Livestock sickened and died after eating dirt-covered vegetation. Buildings, furnishings and clothing were covered with silt.

Officials of the Chicago Laundry Owners' association estimated that the storm brought approximately $70,000 additional daily business to association firms.

MARY ASTOR VICTOR IN PARENTS' SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—(UP) A default judgment was entered today in behalf of Mary Astor, vindicating her from charges of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Langhanke, that she refused to support them.

The parents' suit for support was dismissed when they failed to appear at the trial and Miss Astor repeated previous assertions that she had given them money, a $200,000 home and offered to keep them from want. The home recently was sold in foreclosure proceedings.

Miss Astor said her parents were able to support themselves. Her father is a music teacher.

SENATE PASSES STOCK MARKET CONTROL BILL

subject to rigid regulation. The terms and conditions under which exchanges may operate would be dictated through a licensing system.

More patent evils such as manipulation of prices, source of inside information by insiders, pools, wash sales and dissemination of false or misleading information would be prohibited under heavy penalties.

Violations of rules of the controlling commission likewise would carry severe penalties. Persons injured by infractions of the law or orders would be enabled to recover civil damages.

Brokers and exchange members would be subject to supervision of their functions in dealing in securities and speculating on their own account.

Highlights of the house and senate bills:

The house bill provides for control by the federal trade commission.

The senate bill places such control in a newly created federal securities exchange commission. Either body would obtain control by provisions that no transaction might be completed through the mails or interstate commerce except with one of these commissions.

Margins

Both house and senate bills provide that to obtain a license exchanges must file a registration statement, data on its rules, by-laws, constitution, etc., and agreements to abide by the commission's rules.

Broker's Credit

The senate and house bills both provide that the Federal Reserve board shall control brokers' borrowings and that in no case shall the broker borrow more than 200 per cent of his net capital.

Manipulation

Both measures prohibit pegging, wash sales, misleading statements, fictitious appearance of activity or other practices which the commission may forbid. Short sales and stop loss orders would be subject to regulation.

Segregation of Functions

The commission would have authority to regulate trading on and off the floor of members for their own account as well as other practices. It would also report Jan. 3 on the advisability of segregating broker and dealer functions.

Registration For Securities

Trading in securities not registered with the commission would be prohibited. Registration requirements provide that information concerning the business and financial structure of the corporation, salaries of officers and directors and option agreements, if any, be furnished.

Reports

The commission would have power to require regular periodic filing of reports of business conditions of a registered company.

Review

Orders of the commission would be subject to review by United States circuit court of appeal.

Penalties

The senate bill makes individual violators of the act liable to five years imprisonment and a $25,000 fine. Exchanges would be liable to a $500,000 fine. Rules of the commission would carry two year and $10,000 penalties for individuals and $100,000 for exchanges.

The house bill provides for lesser penalty for individuals for violation of either rules or the act and $500,000 for exchanges.

the "Minuet," covering the American Colonial period, followed by special selections by the Bear Violin Ensemble.

Then comes the French, English, Dutch, Irish, German, Japanese, Italian, Negro, Russian, Czechoslovakian and American mother, the latter appearance climaxing the program.

Choruses and persons who will take prominent parts in the program include the famous Meglin Kiddies, the Santa Ana and Anaheim Canto clubs, Japanese Association of Orange county, George Stinson, the "singing cop," Santa Ana Jubilee singers directed by Edward Sterling, Sokol Czechoslovakian association of Los Angeles, Betty Jane Koster and a surprise group, "Mothers of Tomorrow."

The warrants were served Thursday, coincident with Howard's announcement of his candidacy for sheriff, and after two special investigators, working under his direction, had been making a check of certain places serving liquor in Santa Ana over a period beginning April 21 and ending May 5.

As the American mother is escorted from the north side of the Bowl the Sons of the American Legion and the Legion drum and bugle corps, the parents will be climaxed as Charles D. Swanner, Jr., presents the mothers of all nations with an American flag, in a patriotic ceremony.

Following the induction of the Breakfast club mounted Boy Scout troop in an impressive ceremony, community singing complete the program. The benediction will be given by the Rev. W. J. Hatter, rector of the Church of the Messiah, Episcopal, Santa Ana.

Churches to Honor Mother on Sunday

Mother's Day also will be observed generally in the churches of Santa Ana, announcement of Sunday services and programs revealed today.

Almost every church in the city will devote a service or sermon to Mother's Day, with "mothers" songs featuring many of the music programs scheduled morning and evening.

Arrest 2 at Park For Intoxication

Earl Butcher, 20, and Jerry H. Martin, 19, both of Long Beach and members of a picnic party in Irvine park were booked at the county jail for drunkenness last night after being taken into custody by park authorities.

Deputy Sheriffs G. F. McElveen and Robert Steinberger returned the men to the jail, where they were too intoxicated to be booked at first.

Amelia Rios, 42, Anaheim laborer, was booked at the jail for drunkenness by Anaheim police at 9 o'clock last night.

Make Arrest For Violations Of Quarantine Law

Charged with violation of the state quarantine laws, Mrs. Dora Rodriguez, 20, Stanton, was arrested yesterday by sheriff's officers on a warrant from the court of Judge Charles Kuchel of Anaheim.

Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, signed the complaint against Mrs. Rodriguez. It was alleged that she refused to observe quarantine regulations for tuberculosis at her home. It was reported that her husband was a victim of the disease. She was arraigned in court today.

Amelia Rios, 42, Anaheim laborer, was booked at the jail for drunkenness by Anaheim police at 9 o'clock last night.

Thieves Take $50 Worth of Oil, Gas

More than 250 gallons of gasoline and 24 gallons of oil, valued at $50, were stolen from the pump-house of B. B. Stakeholder, located on Main street near Katella road, some time Thursday night. He reported to sheriff's officers to day. Locks on the door and the gas pump were broken by the burglars.

GIRL MAY DIE AS RESULT OF SEVERE BURNS

Burned from head to foot when a can of kerosene she was holding caught fire at her home at 9 o'clock this morning, Pauline Navarre, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Navarre, El Toro, is fighting for her life at the Orange County hospital.

The little girl was burning trash in the backyard of her home at the time of the accident. While pouring kerosene on the fire, the can became ignited and the flames spread to her clothing. She was alone at the time and received second and third degree burns all over her body before she could extinguish the flames.

Her screams attracted her parents and neighbors and she was rushed to the Orange County hospital for treatment. Attending physicians expressed little hope that the girl would live because such a large area of her skin was burned.

During the Fiesta dance, prizes were awarded for winners in the beard-growing contest to Art Johnson, for the best Spanish ensemble; to Dick Gardner, for the best goatees; to Howard Barnes, for the best sideburns; to Roy McKnight, for the best mustache, and to James Tawney, for the scrappiest beard.

Mr. Remplegar, played by Louie Leck, is said by Phillips to be one of the most difficult parts ever assigned as a comic role, due to the ludicrous unbalanced reasoning of this woman who is thrust from wealth into the necessity of living on meager wages.

Subsidiaries in the role include May Maag as Jenny, the blunt German maid, and Virginia Lee Harper, as Kitty, lady friend of Kenneth Remplegar.

Support of Charles J. McCarthy, Fresno, for the office of state commander was believed sufficient to assure his election over Robert Riley, Oakland. Hugh Harold of Huntington Beach was the leading candidate for senior vice commander, with the chief opposition furnished by Joe Kramer of Hollywood. Santa Monica probably will be chosen for next year's gathering.

Aliens were the center of attack in resolutions before the convention.

Court Notes

McFadden, of Anaheim, informed the court that Boyd had taken employment and could not be in court, but had sent $10 by his attorney to his wife, who was in court.

JAYCEE FIESTA REGARDED AS BIG SUCCESS

Chance alone caused California to be one of the last portions of the country to be entered by Americans, in the opinion of Dr. Osgood Hardy, Occidental college history professor, who talked on "Why California Is in the United States" as the featured speaker of the annual Spanish festival, held yesterday on Santa Ana Junior college campus to entertain high school seniors entering the institution next fall.

Dr. Hardy went on to explain that various historic incidents that attracted little attention at the time led the way for California to hold the place it now occupies.

"Three-Cornered Moon," three-act comedy presented to high school seniors last night in the Willard auditorium, was the annual Fiesta play presented by the drama class, under the instruction of Ernest Crozier Phillips. The play will be given for the public tonight, at 8:15 o'clock, in the Willard auditorium.

Other events throughout the festival included presentations by Marianita and Jose Arias and his Mexican troubadours, musical entertainers; an address by Father Joseph Thompson of Los Angeles and son of an early California Spanish family; student dance in the Andrews gymnasium, with Earl Motley's orchestra; a dinner for seniors on the campus lawn in the evening; an art exhibit; and a journalism exhibit, sponsored by the college alumni association in the campus print shop, along with fine arts press work done in the shop under the direction of Thomas E. Williams, printing instructor.

"We feel that our Fiesta this year was one of the best the school has ever presented," stated Thomas H. Glenn, who annually acts as faculty adviser of the fete. "The success was due to the excellent co-operation of all connected with the Fiesta in securing the talent and presentations that were offered and pushing programs through successfully. We entertained approximately 550 seniors at the evening dinner."

Austin Joy, student chairman of the festival, stated that he was especially glad to see so many Don alumni present, in addition to the many visiting seniors.

During the Fiesta dance, prizes were awarded for winners in the beard-growing contest to Art Johnson, for the best Spanish ensemble; to Dick Gardner, for the best goatees; to Howard Barnes, for the best sideburns; to Roy McKnight, for the best mustache, and to James Tawney, for the scrappiest beard.

Mystery Car and Armed Men Turn Out to Be Police

Notified by radio to be on the lookout for two armed men in a mysterious new car without license plates coming toward Santa Ana from Costa Mesa, Santa Ana police did their duty early today and stopped the car.

They were considerably surprised to find the mysterious auto was one of the new farm detail radio cars from the sheriff's office, and was driven by Deputies Fred Swayze and Steve Duhart. New plates haven't been received by the officers and the customary red light and siren had not been installed.

Officers Joe Murillo and A. L. Steward explained the situation to the deputies and then notified the Newport Beach police, who took the original report from an officer in Costa Mesa.

SURVEY HERE REVEALS MANY JOBS PLANNED 35 YEARS. DIES

Improvement work exceeding a total cost of $115,000, of which approximately $85,000 will go to wage payments for Santa Ana workers, is provided for under pledges received the first three days by the Renovize Santa Ana Campaign. It was announced today by J. W. Estes, general manager.

Santa Ana is Renovize-minded, according to all reports from the crew of 11 survey men who have been contacting householders, and everywhere they are receiving assurances of co-operation. Plans for needed improvements are being made by hundreds of property owners.

For the first two days pledges totaled approximately $85,000, and when reports were received today from the survey men, covering their operations yesterday, this total had climbed to approximately $115,000, of which it is estimated from 75 to 80 per cent will be required for wages.

Every form of improvement is being projected for Santa Ana homes and business places during the Renovize campaign period to September 1, according to the pledges received to date. These cover new plumbing and electric fixtures, painting, papering and decorating; cement work, garden planting and improvements; car repairs and painting; house remodeling, alterations, and modernization, etc.

Carrying out the recovery program of a five-day week and cooperating with home owners who are largely engaged on Saturdays in shopping, the Renovize men are not working today, but will resume their house-to-house canvassing on Monday.

Santa Ana is already getting busy in the Renovizing work, one paint store proprietor has reported for he had to call 11 paper hangers in order to find one who was available to hang an order of wall paper requested by a customer.

FOREST HOME CAMP GROUNDS OF CITY OPEN

Santa Ana Camp and playground, consisting of 11 acres one mile above Forest Home, is now open to the public with a caretaker in charge, and is declared to be an ideal vacation spot for fishing, hiking or rest, it was announced today by city officials.

The playground is about two hours distant from Santa Ana and is equipped with camp stoves, tables, water, shower baths, lights and rest rooms. The camp sites are cleared and widely separated to insure privacy.

The camp is one mile away from the highest water fall in Southern California and Vivian falls, Falls creek, Vivian creek, Alder creek, Mill creek, Dog lake, the top of San Bernardino mountains and Grayback are all reached by good trails.

A nominal charge is made to help defray expenses and upkeep of the grounds. The camp is owned by the city of Santa Ana.

TWO ARRESTED ON BURGLARY CHARGES

Conflicting stories concerning a robbery and a burglary placed two men in the county jail last night, one charged with robbery and the other charged with investigation of burglary and perjury.

Howard Barker, 19, Palace hotel, first signed a complaint against George Dennis, 22, Flower and Chapman avenues, charging that Dennis had robbed him of about $15. When approached by officers, Dennis offered a good alibi to show he did not rob Barker, and then told officers that Barker had made a burglar in Santa Ana.

Judge J. F. Talbott, 710 Maury street, received word last night of the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. G. Talbott, 62, who passed away May 12 at her home at 682 Shatto place, Los Angeles. Mrs. Talbott was a former resident of this city. Other relatives here are Mrs. E. B. Smith, 106 South Birch street, a sister-in-law.

LIQUOR SALESMAN PAYS FINE OF $75

On a recommendation of leniency from the jury that found Bernard Waltz, 22, salesman for the Fullerton Beverage company, guilty of selling wine to minors, Judge Halsey L. Spence imposed a fine of $75 or 37 1/2 days in jail this morning. Waltz paid the fine.

The verdict was turned in Thursday after the jury had spent several hours in deliberation. The recommendation of leniency was given because of the salesman's age, it was stated.

Waltz was arrested several weeks ago after he had sold liquor to three 12-year-old boys.

REQUEST FOR PARDON BRINGS UP OLD SLAYING

The application for pardon, made by Mrs. Mary M. Campbell, who was convicted of manslaughter here in 1921, was announced today from Sacramento, recalling the sensational episode of 13 years ago, when Mrs. Campbell shot and killed her husband, J. Campbell, in a saloon tent city.

The subsequent trial in the fall of 1921, when an Orange county jury convicted the woman of manslaughter, attracted wide attention because of the accused woman's dramatic background, associated with "the old days, the gold days" of Nevada, and a Nevada millionaire of national prominence.

Special writers of the metropolitan newspapers were sent to Santa

Ana to "cover" the trial.

Sentenced to a term of not more than 10 years at San Quentin, Mrs. Campbell was paroled in 1927, after serving six years. Her sentence expired in 1931. She now has applied to Governor Ralph for a full pardon.

Her defense to the charge of murder that was filed against her was that her oil-worker husband had beaten her unmercifully and, finally subjecting her to unbearable indignities, had driven her berserk. She seized a revolver, finally cornered him in another tent, where she shot him down.

Former District Attorney Alex P. Nelson and his chief deputy, C. N. Moyle, conducted the prosecution of Mrs. Campbell. She was sentenced by former Judge R. Y. Williams.

Gertrude V. Anson Called By Death

Mrs. Gertrude V. Anson, 79, who had been living with her sister, Mrs. Anna Helm, of Huntington Beach for the last two years, died today following an extended illness.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at Rosedale Cemetery, under the direction of Harrell and Brown Funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street. Interment in Fairhaven cemetery.

A WORD OF COMFORT

A man's true value depends not upon what he thinks he is worth but upon what his example and influence mean to his fellows. Whether you have want of opportunity, environment or success make a comparatively little difference compared with your meet life as you find it without compromise.

Striving to live true to your faith in God's love and guidance gives assurance that when you cash up your accounts in the twilight years, you will be glad and unashamed.

NEW FEDERAL RELIEF PLAN INAUGURATED

Chas P. Taft Final Rites Held Today

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—Prospect of monthly expenditure of approximately $2,500,000 of federal relief funds through SERA upon relief and work-relief projects for the balance of 1934 strengthened today as State Emergency Relief Administrator R. C. Branion got under way the modified plan for federal relief distribution in California which he submitted last week to Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Federal allocations to California may be expected to continue at approximately $5,000,000 a month for the rest of the year, Branion believes. Of this amount, $500,000 must be used to finance transient camps and certain institutional services. The balance will be available for application to the relief program proposed in cooperation with local government units.

The new program provides that SERA will employ federal relief funds to pay wages upon approved projects in counties which agree to maintain adequate direct relief for needy persons unable to find employment and who cannot be placed at work upon approved SERA projects.

Only those projects which conform to federal standards of relief can be approved. Branion emphasized in declaring that while every effort will be made to speed the re-employment of California's idle men and women, projects will be approved and work initiated with the greatest attention to merit and efficiency.

The program will be placed in operation in the counties in order of the gravity of their relief and unemployment problems.

Following the arrest, Chief Criminal Deputy Merle Dean went to the Kooflaas home and said he found eight pints of whiskey and one and one-half gallons of whiskey in the house, according to reports.

FOUR DRUNKEN DRIVERS SENT TO JAIL HERE

Four defendants charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, yesterday were ordered to serve jail sentences as condition of probation granted them in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court.

Joe Montano, 22, Santa Ana produce clerk and former soda fountain clerk, must serve 90 days as a condition of three years' probation, his driving license being suspended for one year. He was arrested on West Fourth street, April 14.

S. G. Morningstar, Anaheim cement pipe contractor, declared that he "really could drive his car better" after taking the three drinks he had on the day he was arrested in Santa Ana canyon, April 22. He had been arrested thrice previously for similar offenses. The court granted him probation for three years, on condition he serve six months in jail. His driving license was suspended for one year.

Anastacio Garcia, 21, of Corona Del Mar, was given probation for three years, with a six-months jail sentence attached, after he had said he preferred going to jail in this country than be required to return to his native Mexico. His driving license was cancelled by Smith, under direction of Miss Tilton.

Harold E. Walberg directed the senior orchestra in "Spirit of Independence," by Holzman; "In a Rose Garden," by Acciani; "Testament Overture," by Zamenik, and "Centure of Progress," by Sousa.

The Senior Girls' Glee club sang an arrangement of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Flowers of Dreams" and "The Last Night," by Clokey, with Miss Tilton directing.

The fourth defendant was Julio Aparicio, 40, who preferred the chance to return to Mexico, if he could be allowed time to dispose of his property. The court placed him on probation for five years and passed sentence of one year in jail, promising to suspend the jail sentence when Aparicio and his family departed for Mexico. The driving license was cancelled.

As a group of closing numbers, the combined girls' glee clubs and orchestra gave "Annie Laurie," as arranged by Dudley Buck, and "The Bells of St. Mary's," by Adams, and the mixed choruses and the orchestra, "Gloria From Twelfth Mass," by Mozart.

The staging of the event was arranged by the high school stage craft class; Bruce Clark headed the ushers; the mimeographing department of the school printed the programs, and the advertising class made and distributed the posters announcing the event. Genevieve Townsend, William Hampton and Mary Ann Erwin were accompanists for the glee clubs.

Y SWIM POOL ATTRACTS BIG CROWD FRIDAY

Officers are to be elected at what is expected to be the most largely attended meeting of the Orange County Principals and Teachers association to be held this year, and the event is scheduled for Thursday, May 17, at the Laguna Beach Grammar school.

An outstanding program has been arranged by R. L. Spaugh, president of the association, which he has termed a Hollywood night.

The speaker of the evening is to be a Hollywood motion picture star whose name is to be announced later and the technicalities of motion picture making will be explained by a studio technician of Hollywood.

Added attractions will be a miniature camera and the showing of a miniature reel of film. James Burroughs, KFI artist and musical comedy star, will be the guest artist of the evening when he will be presented in a request program.

Reservations for the dinner must be made with D. Russell Parks, of the El Modena Grammar school by the evening of May 15, according to Spaugh.

SCHOOL BUDGET TO BE HIGHER THAN YEAR AGO

ANAHEIM, May 12.—Presentation of the first draft of the budget for 1934-35 presented at the meeting of high school trustees indicates that that body will take advantage of the five per cent increase allowed in school budgets. Principal J. T. Clays said that the increase is placed under the heading of alterations.

Temporary contracts for teachers in the school were approved at the meeting re-employing every teacher in the school. Permanent contracts will be issued as soon as the budget has been approved. Clays said that while the salaries have not been definitely established the indication is that there will be little change.

Clays said that the extra money provided for in the tentative budget is required for moving and remodeling the two wings of the present main plant at the high school, should the school bonds be approved.

With the coming of summer it is planned to offer an enlarged program of swimming instruction for men and women, boys and girls, in addition to the usual free time for those able to swim.

The business men's gymnasium classes at 4:45 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, conducted by Elmer E. Heldt, will continue throughout the summer.

The attendance at these classes has been so large of late that plans are being made to shift part of the men to Tuesday and Friday.

REDUCE CHARGE IN ACCIDENT CASE

Orval Elliott, Anaheim youth injured Thursday when struck by a car on the 101 highway near the Orange County hospital, was removed to his home yesterday when it was found his injuries were not as serious as first believed.

Allen Taylor, 32, Redlands, held responsible for drunken driving following the accident, was arraigned in the Anaheim justice court yesterday and fined $25 by Judge Charles Kuchel after the charges were reduced to reckless driving. Taylor's car struck the youth and hurled him across the highway, according to reports of the accident.

Hearing Set May 23 In Death Case

A preliminary hearing has been set for May 23 for Albert Brunner, 40, Long Beach ship owner facing murder charges in connection with the death of three persons in a wreck at Dana Point on March 11.

The hearing will be held before Judge John Landell of San Juan Capistrano. Brunner is in the county jail, where he was transferred last week from the Orange County hospital.

Mr. Stanger resides in Brea. Mr.

and Mrs. Van Eaton also were honored guests. The program included readings by Jennie Minton, and a poem written by G. H. Mrs. L. L. Tanner.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

CLEAN JOB
The neatest, cleanest inside job of political guilting in many a day was the one done on the innocent professor from New England, Dr. Thorp.

Not a fingerprint was left anywhere to tell who lopped off the head of the director of foreign and domestic commerce.

Everyone knows the trigger man was Senator Stephens, of Mississippi, but he is strictly a trigger man. In his long career he has never been known to plan a job of such proportions as this one.

There was a master mind behind Stephens, but no one knows who, although some people have suspicion.

If the Senate of the United States should hold a secret vote today awarding a medal to the man who got Thorp, a majority probably would vote, rightly or wrongly, for none other than James A. Farley—yes, the postmaster general.

CREDIT
Farley is so modest that he might decline the honor, but it is at least a compliment to him that Senators consider him capable of such a splendid execution.

It is especially complimentary because President Roosevelt himself, Commerce Secretary Roper and Assistant Commerce Secretary Dickinson originally tried to save Thorp.

INFLUENCE
Mr. Roosevelt nominated Thorp last January. Thorp was the kind of Republican that the Democrats have been welcoming into their fold, the Norris-La Follette type. He was a quiet economist who knew little of the Washington world.

His nomination was referred in the Senate to a sub-committee composed of two Democrats, Stephens and Backman, and one Republican, Nye.

Hearings were held for two days. Rather trivial objections were made to Professor Thorp. At any rate, Backman and Nye thought they were trivial.

Stephens, however, decided to fight. He fought with the only available weapon—delay. He declined to call his committee together and no action could be taken.

The President himself finally wrote a letter to Stephens demanding action, but it did no good. Roper likewise demanded action, but he had no more influence than the White House had.

SCUTTLING
After weeks, Stephens finally submitted the question in private to the larger Commerce Committee of the Senate, from which he derived his power.

No record exists to prove it, but in that secret Commerce Committee meeting, Stephens and Roper used some warm words. Stephens insinuated that Roper had first worked against Thorp. Roper's explanation was that he had later investigated the matter and found no valid objections to Thorp.

Even then, no vote was taken. Later, Stephens went around privately and polled the Democrats on the larger committee. They were under the impression that he was campaigning against Thorp and some of them, as a personal favor to Stephens, said they would vote against Thorp if the matter ever got to a vote.

One refused. He was Senator Sheppard, of Texas, who took the amazing position that he would not oppose any man just for political reasons.

Stephens got enough votes to defeat Thorp in committee without Sheppard, so he rushed down to the White House and urged that the nomination be withdrawn. It was, immediately, without further struggle.

Nine out of ten Senators will tell you today that if a vote could be obtained on the Thorp nomination, he would be confirmed overwhelmingly.

NOTES
The Senate cloakrooms believed Stephens was so excited because Thorp had turned him down on some patronage appointments in the Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bureau. That is incorrect. Stephens received no appointments in the bureau and did not ask for any, but he did ask for and get a job for a friend in the census bureau, which also is under the Commerce Department.

Thorps' opponents publicly based their objections on the ground that business was strongly against college professor being in Thorp's job.

Investigation discloses there were only three outside objections to Thorp. One came from a small business establishment in upper New York State, another from an inconsequential employee who had been fired and the third from a Greek in New York who protested because Thorp's department had not done more to help the Athens exposition.

The Democratic Protective association, opposing Thorp, is composed mostly of one man, J. Rutledge Magee, a South Carolinian, who was a CWA worker in Thorp's bureau and was dropped when CWA was curtailed.

Labor Secretary Perkins' car is a last year's Lincoln, made by Henry Ford, who still is having trouble getting government contracts because of his NRA labor policy.

Representative Sam Rayburn, co-author of the Stock Exchange Regulation Bill, is working hard to make James Landis (FTC, Securities Act author) chairman of the proposed Stock Exchange regulation committee. Landis is considered certain to get the job.

The AAA is very much worried that the farm belt drought will force prices so high as to make the processing tax system inoperative. When the farm price of wheat gets to $1.05 a bushel, the tax goes off, and there will be no money then to pay the farmers for acreage curtailment.

NEW YORK

BIMETALLISM

Not all the pressure for bimetallism comes from the silver Senators and their obvious New York supporters.

The knowing say the British are doing their part sub rosa to help the cause. Their methods are anything but crude and their influence isn't easy to trace but people with excellent London connections have been subtly selling the blessings of bimetallism to Congressmen and others whose opinions carry weight in Washington. The pipeline runs to the Bank of England crowd—still the backstage rulers of the Empire despite growth of opposition rather than official government circles. Their hand will never be shown publicly but it's being played for unlimited stakes.

The ironic part of it is that some of New York's most outspoken silverites are vehemently anti-British and claim that the broader metallic base is necessary to free us forever from London's financial domination! Those who know the inner picture figure that London must get a sophisticated English grin out of the zeal of its unconscious allies.

Of course the secret British enthusiasm for bimetallism is on Uncle Sam's behalf. They want no part of it for themselves.

CHESS

Why are our British cousins leaving to stone unturned to lead us to salvation through silver? Experts say there are two reasons.

(1) Britain has no idea of returning to any fixed monetary base herself. She knows we won't revert to the gold standard without an international stabilization agreement which includes the sterling bloc. That's out—because London won't enter such an agreement except on terms perpetuating sterling trade advantages and we aren't likely to be caught napping on that score.

BUT—if our 16 to 1 emotions could be stirred to the point of action—the dollar would again be tied to a metallic foundation while the pound would remain free to climb or dive at will. Figure what that difference would mean in world-wide trade competition.

Dish experts fully appreciate the merits of monetary nobility.

(2) American adoption of bimetallism would pull Britain's Far Eastern chestnuts out of the fire at no cost to John Bull. It would raise the price of silver and thereby smash the currency advantage of Oriental exporters—especially the Japanese—without committing London in any way. What could be sweeter than to have one major trade rival cripple another for you and bind his own hands at the same time?

DEFEAT

England hasn't practised bimetallism herself for more than a hundred years but local insiders remark she knows more about it than we will in the next hundred. One authority comments: "London ran us politically until 1776. Then she ran us financially—through banking connection and the gold standard—for one hundred and fifty odd years more. Her hopes for the next 150 seem to lie in lashing us to silver."

But even the most ardent local silver advocates—whether for or against the British—now concede that FDR isn't having any. It's a mighty bitter pill but they privately know they are licked—at least till Congress meets again.

INSULL

Well-poised New Yorkers say that Samuel Insull's enforced return is bad news to several individuals and institutions who earnestly hoped the embers of the Insull crash would not be rekindled. There is reason to believe that American as well as British money was freely though secretly contributed to the Insull "escape fund." It's hinted the government has much more on its mind than putting the ex-magnate behind the bars.

New York learns that an effort will probably be made to interest Silas Strawn in Insull's defense. Strawn had more than casual contact with Insull interests in the days of their glory and is rated one of Chicago's ace lawyers. There is doubt here whether he would take such an obviously unpopular case although an acquittal verdict would be a notable professional triumph for any counsel.

CUNNINGHAM

The death of Comptroller W. A. Cunningham hits the local Fusion administration even harder than appears on the surface.

Cunningham's ability and integrity were highly respected by local bankers. They were about ready to give him anything he wanted in the way of financing accommodation. His successor will have to start from scratch. Bankers always assume that anyone connected with the city government is a suspicious character until he proves otherwise. This may delay seriously the solution of the city's refunding problem.

The possibility that Frank Prchal may stage a comeback in November also causes uneasiness. His victory—or that of any other

DEMSEY SCOLDS BAER

When Max Baer stopped Max Schmeling last summer, Jack Dempsey was positive the Butterfly Butcherboy could knock Primo Carnera harder than a dozen bats' hips. But plenty has happened since to cause the old champion to change his mind.

Dempsey doubts that Baer can get in shape and now qualifies his prediction by saying that he'll whip Big Boy provided he can do so.

"Baer drinks, smokes and runs around too much," says the Man Mauler. "He still doesn't take the game seriously. I suspect that the success of his picture went to his head."

"But he can fight if he makes up his mind and buckles down. If he fails to do this, and is not in condition, Carnera should win the decision. I don't think Primo can knock out Max. I don't think he can knock out any half-fair fighter, but he boxes mighty well and can fight all night unless he is hit properly."

Dempsey concludes his current refereeing tour at Memphis May 15, after which he will move on to New York to help ballyhoo the Battle of the Giants June 14.

Ancil Hoffmann, manager of the challenger, insisted that he be cut in, so he is to collect seven-and-a-half per cent for lending a hand in the steam-up.

ST. ANDREW'S NOT SO TOUGH
Lawson Little Says Coffin Hazards of China Worse
HE SCORED 102, GOT JITTERS

BY HENRY McLEMORE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 12.—It was the night before his first round of golf on the historic royal and ancient course, and Lawson Little of San Francisco was sitting on the bed in his room at Rusack's Marine hotel, where the Walker Cup team was quartered, shinning his golf clubs.

On the morrow he was to play St. Andrews, with its winds and gorse, its wicked road hole and "Hell's bunker," but if he were perturbed he didn't show it.

"I guess it's a pretty tough course," Lawson said, "but it can't scare me, 'cause I have played on the hardest one in the world. And that's no exaggeration. It was in Tientsin, China, where Dad, who is an army doctor, was stationed several years ago. You know what the course in Tientsin had for traps and bunkers? Coffins and graves and bones of Chinamen long gone to wherever Chinamen go."

In this section of China, anyway, it was the custom to place the coffin on the ground and then cover it under a mound of earth, but leaving the sides and ends exposed. Well, this course, which must have been laid out by a light-hearted sort of chap, was literally sprinkled with these gruesome hazards. There was one every 25 yards—in the fairways, rough, and around the green.

"There was so many of them, in fact, that the back of the scorecard bore this rule: 'Ball may be lifted and dropped from open coffin without penalty.' It didn't cost you strokes to place your drive or second in one, but it cost you plenty of peace of mind. Not once, but half a dozen times

AMERICANS RETAIN WALKER CUP

COATES HEAVES NO-HIT GAME-- BUT LOSES, 4-3

Despite their 4-3 defeat by Pomona in the final game of the exhibition series, Santa Ana's Stars today believed they had definitely solved two problems that have beset them all spring.

Until further notice, it was indicated, Jimmy Coates can be considered the club's first-string pitcher and Francis Conrad the starting shortstop.

Coates went into the Pomona contest at the Municipal Bowl last night early in the second inning as a relief gunner for Ira DeBusk, who had given up four runs and as many hits.

Coates thereupon proceeded to hurl eight complete rounds of hitless-runless baseball in the most dazzling mound exhibition seen here in years. Only four Pomonans got on base, one on an error, three on walks. None passed second.

SIGN CONRAD AS SHORTSTOP

Conrad, regular second baseman at Huntington Beach last year, looked so good during his brief bit of action that Manager Bill Cole expects to use him at short against Olive Tuesday night. The kid has had a full season of night ball experience and has played shortstop many times, two recommendations that Ernie Stewart, the Stars' acquisition from U. S. C., cannot claim.

Stewart broke in with the club last night but obviously the short-base game was strange to him.

Pomona's run-making was short-lived, but concentrated. Goodman opened the game with a double. Stock fanned. Marcott was safe on Young's error, Goodman staying on second. Watson's out, Preble to Daley, advanced both runners. Goodman scored on a wild pitch and Marcott took third. Coltrin bounced to Shortstop Stewart who came up with a nice stop but made such a slow throw to first that Coltrin was safe. Marcott scoring. Keough then lined to left field, getting credit for a home run when the ball rolled under the bleachers. Coltrin tallied ahead of him. Ferrell fanned for the third out.

When Hawk started the second with a blazing single to left, DeBusk was yanked in favor of Coates, who hurled perfect ball the rest of the distance. There were only two balls hit hard off him, and the Stars' great mid-fielder, Rod Ballard, came up with both. He ranged clear back into the darkness to stab Watson's terrific drive in the eighth. No better catch will be seen here this summer for Watson's poke looked like a cinch home run.

SEARS RAPS HOMER

Santa Ana threatened in almost every inning but its efforts were in vain until the sixth when Preble singled to right and Ballard singled to short. "Club" Sears lined a home run into the left field stands. Preble and Ballard trotting home ahead of him, it was Sears' third Homer of the season.

The Stars tried desperately to pick up the tying run—but luck was against them. Conrad opened the eighth with a booming double off Chet Stock's outstretched fingers, and Ballard followed with a wicked line drive down the third base line which Goodman deflected just enough to let Shortstop Keough make the catch and double Conrad off second. With one down in the ninth, Koral singled and took an extra base when Thoms' throw-in got away from Keough. Coates' infield out sent "Bomo" to third. Denny bounced high in front of the plate, Messer coming in fast to scoop up the ball and tag Koral at the plate.

17 CAPISTRANO STUDENTS WILL GET DIPLOMAS

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, May 12.—Seventeen students will graduate from San Juan Capistrano Union High school this year if all work carried at present by the seniors is completed by June, according to John S. Malcolm, principal.

The senior class includes the following: Lorna Barry, Dorothy Becker, Betty Carlson, Myron Gilbert, Milan Haven, James Isham, Robert Errercarte, Earl Jinnette, Edward Lobo, Milton McFadden, Bill Magee, Jack Moyer, Unell Mixon, Eleanor Strang, Fred Stoffel, Don Pierce and Robert Wilkins.

Activities are given for the next four weeks from the school calendar by the principal beginning May 16, when the Boys' and Girls' clubs under the direction of Mrs. Esther Allen Hubbard will give a concert at the school auditorium. Mrs. Harlow Halladay presided over the business meeting. Mrs. J. L. Horrell, Mrs. H. S. Barnes and Mrs. O. J. Guillet took part in discussing missionary topics.

Madeline shrugged her shoulders. "Of course you were bored, poor darling. Has the price of hogs gone up? How many quarts of milk does old Daisy give now? I suppose the chickens aren't laying well this year, and so much rain is going to ruin the crops! My God, don't I know it all! The same conversation every day! And the prayers!"

"I'd be proud and happy if he were a relative of mine, but I'm too tired to talk about him or anything else."

Madeline was sitting alone at the head of a long table. She called out airily, "Hello!" and Donna sat down beside her.

"Well, how do you get along?" Madeline asked.

"All right. I don't think they suspected anything."

"Still crazy about farm life?"

Donna did not answer.

"How's the good-looking cousin on further acquaintance?"

"I'd be proud and happy if he were a relative of mine, but I'm too tired to talk about him or anything else."

Madeline shivered her shoulders. "If you mean Con David, the boss canvasman had endured in silence the jibes and sneers of his companions who cordially resented and disliked the star performer—a feeling caused more or less by jealousy of the performer's talent. These taunts, augmented by seething jealousy, had banished everything that tended to fineness in Trafford's nature.

A wisp of a girl had made him the laughing stock of his crew! At one glance from the animal trainer Madeline had thrown him over.

Trafford was sure Con David would never marry her; everyone knew Con was crazy about Donna. Well, he'd show her! Big Ned Trafford would show her she couldn't make a fool of him.

The two girls drew nearer and Trafford moved slightly, obstructing their entrance to the tent.

"Pardon me," Madeline said lightly. Donna gave a little gasp at what she read in the man's glowering face.

"I want to talk to you," he mumbled, looking down at Madeline.

"Sorry, but I can't stop now. Ned. Got to dress."

"You'll talk." He caught her wrist and pulled her close to him.

"Trafford!" cried Donna.

"That's all right, Miss Donna. This girl and I have got to come to a showdown. She's been trying to make a monkey out of me and I won't stand for it."

"Let go my wrist, you brute!"

Madeline gasped. "There's no need to try to make a monkey out of me."

H. B. WELL PUMPING 130 BARRELS OIL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 12.—The Laughlin well of the Big Boy Drilling company is pumping 130 barrels of 25 gravity oil, free from water and emulsion. In the early days of drilling into the ocean pool, every well came in a gusher, with plenty of gas, the oil running from 1000 to 7000 barrels daily and the gas ranging from a million to 50 million cubic feet daily.

While the last two or three new wells drilled into the ocean pool have been smaller producers than the wells of a year ago, the older wells are holding up in fine shape, it is reported.

As a rule the "production curves" on the best wells stand up after the year of production as good as any oil field ever known, oil men say.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Woman of Spain, by Scott O'Dell, published by Houghton Mifflin & Co.

This book gives us a somewhat different picture of the pioneering Spanish women than we are accustomed to. We usually think of them busily at work about their homes, superintending the inside of the homes, devising delicacies from such limited ingredients as were at hand—women of poise and assurance, a complement to the dashing Dons who thumbed about on their horses and dispersed lavish hospitality to guests, while their wives presided over the household modestly.

The two women who crossed dreary desert wastes with their cattle and goods and their grant of land from the King of Spain, to settle in the region of San Francisco when that city was nothing but a mission and a fort were not of that type. They were determined women who had come from their home in Spain and held firm to their determination to claim their grant and sow their seed and increase their herd in spite of the discouraging disinterest of two other members of the family and the circumstance that they had to till their own soil and work in the fields like men.

There was a cleavage in the family. The Salazar family was a family of four—Luisa and Sebastian and their daughters Isabel and Marta. Maria and her mother were determined to carry their project through. Sebastian and Isabel were in favor of locating in some settlement where there was safety, dancing, and for Sebastian plenty of liquor. They had left Spain because Sebastian had become involved in a vile deed.

Luisa dies before they have won through to success. Marta is left alone to meet the opposition of Isabel and Sebastian to staying on at the ranch, the unfriendliness and later the more baneful friendliness of the mayor-domo of the mission who was covetous of the Salazar ranch and the unkempt studies of nature.

There is a poignant love story and interesting pictures of Yankee trading ships and the customs and mode of life around Saint Francis Bay a hundred years ago.

Brazilian Adventure, by Peter Fleming, published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

"Brazilian Adventure" is an account of adventure which debunks the adventure book. It sustains suspense, however, in the best traditional manner of adventure books. At one point when the noise of a breaking twig presages the approach of a probably unfriendly Indian it develops that the noise was caused by a deer.

"A miasma of anti-climax hung over our enterprise," says the author. But he makes the most of the material afforded by experiences of the expedition. There is good ironic humor. The author, far from making any effort to portray himself as a brave hero, is willing to present himself as a native tool.

It is good reading, as much because of its novel style as because of the dangers which really confront the members of the expedition. The spectacle of three of Fleming's companions hurrying

PRAIRIE THEMES

I
The prairie is a lonely old man
Who closes his eyes against
The black smoke of chattering towns,
Remembering the white silence
Of plum thickets in shadowy springs.

II
The hill is a tired woman
In a faded shawl;
She picks at the tangled fringe
And sighs over a thread of willow green.
A note from her April song.

III
The moon is an old man
Who cries the hours;
With his lantern he tramps a shadowy path
And sees nothing of the night's mad dancing.
He thinks only of dawn,
Blue smoke rising from a chimney,
And old slippers
And sleep.

'MAN'S CASTLE' '20 MILLION SWEETHEARTS' AT WALKER'S CLOSES SUNDAY

A double feature bill that brings a picture regarded by many as one of the outstanding dramas of recent years, and a broad, fast moving comedy of high-tempo modern life is scheduled for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at Walker's State theater.

The films are "Man's Castle," in which a strong love story is woven against a background of shantytown squalor and tawdryness, and "Convention City," the chronicle of riotous happenings at a big company's annual sales jamboree at Atlantic City.

"Man's Castle" is the story of a man, Spencer Tracy, who could not hear train whistles without wanting to hop a freight for some distant point, and a girl, Loretta Young, loves him so much that she tells him he is free to go.

The supporting cast includes Marjorie Rambeau, Walter Connolly, Glenda Farrell, Arthur Hohl and Dickie Moore.

Joan Blondell has the leading role in "Convention City," as a fast working gold digger who "mines" furiously during the course of the sales meeting, when the traveling men spend most of their time turning playboys. A couple of wives add greatly to the complications in the story. Others in the cast are Adolphe Menjou, Dick Powell, Mary Astor, Guy Kibbee, Frank McHugh, Patricia Ellis, Ruth Donnelly and Hugh Herbert.

The entertainment bill is completed with a chapter of "Fighting With Kit Carson," the story of frontier days which has been approved by the state Parent-Teacher association.

JOHN BARRYMORE AND MUSICAL PLAY COMING TO STATE

Continuing a week of feature entertainment, Walker's State theater brings two more outstanding film productions to the screen on Wednesday and Thursday, according to Manager Vic Carroll.

Both are pictures that have brought much favorable comment everywhere they have been shown, and are regarded as clean, wholesome entertainment.

John Barrymore with a supporting cast including Bebe Daniels, Doris Kenyon and Onslow Stevens brings the New York stage success, "Counselor-at-Law," to the screen. It is the story of a successful lawyer who comes to America as an immigrant in his life when he faces disbarment and the loss of his wife.

The other film, "Let's Fall in Love," which introduces many popular musical favorites, including the title song, concerns the experiences of Hollywood actors and actresses and the transformation of an attendant at a circus concession to a glamorous motion picture star. Edmund Lowe is the director who finds Ann Sothern working with a circus and who through a "build-up" secures her a starring role in a big production.

FILM AT BROADWAY CLOSES RUN TODAY

Cary Grant and Sylvia Sydney, playing the stellar roles in "Thirty Day Princess," an intriguing picture full of romance and surprise sequences, will be seen for the last time at the Broadway theater tonight.

Woven around the strange adventures of an actress who is out of work and who becomes suddenly prominent through her taking the part of a princess for a month, the story is climaxed with her meeting a distinguished newspaper publisher, played by Grant. Other well known players in the picture include Edward Arnold,

STARS OF "MEN IN WHITE"

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy, paired together for the first time in this year's prize-winning Pulitzer play, "Men in White," which opens at the Broadway theater Sunday with an able supporting cast, including such well-known players as Otto Kruger, Jean Hersholt and Elizabeth Allen.

Declared a distinct innovation in film entertainment, giving as it does, the behind the scenes picture of radio entertainers and their task of pleasing the public and featured with the appearance of famous radio stars in a musical production with an unusually good story backing it up, "Twenty Million Sweethearts," First National radio romance, closes a successful week's run at the West Coast theater tomorrow night.

While the picture combines drama, comedy and romance in a well defined plot, it is interspersed with catchy new songs which give it color. There is a strong cast of players with Pat O'Brien in the leading role, a semi-comic part in which he plays a fast talking though somewhat blundering talent scout for a radio company.

"Twenty Million Sweethearts" introduces a new romantic team in Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers, radio sweethearts who sing for the public and make love privately.

Dick Powell is the handsome actor and vocalist of stage, screen and radio fame below at the left, who now is appearing in the sales meeting, when the traveling men spend most of their time turning playboys. A couple of wives add greatly to the complications in the story. Others in the cast are Adolphe Menjou, Dick Powell, Mary Astor, Guy Kibbee, Frank McHugh, Patricia Ellis, Ruth Donnelly and Hugh Herbert.

Selected shorts include a Charles Judels comedy, "Puks and Kisses," a Grantland Rice Sportspaper, "Marine Marvels," and World News Events.

IN "CONVENTION CITY"

Vivacious Joan Blondell has the role of a pert and saucy gold digger in "Convention City," a fast-moving comedy, which opens tomorrow at Walker's State. The other feature is "Man's Castle."

"Men in White," winning Pulitzer play, comes to the screen of the Broadway theater tomorrow for four days in a film which not only brings a romantic new emotional team to the screen, but also one of the most dramatic stories ever produced, it was announced today by Lester J. Fountain, manager.

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are teamed for the first time in screen history in the leading roles. He is a doctor, in love with his profession, but also in love with an heiress, who can't understand the inhuman demands of his profession.

The dramatic background of the story is in a modern hospital, vivid and gripping in the gamut of unveiled emotions which only a hospital knows. For the first time the profession of medicine is revealed in all its stark, rich, human aspects. An actual operation scene is pictured in vivid detail, not morbidly, but as an education in the procedure of medicine as well as in the understanding of basic human emotions and instincts.

Elizabeth Allen plays the part of a nurse with whom Gable enters into a liaison. Jean Hersholt, noted character actor, plays the part of a prominent surgeon. Other well known players in "Men in White" include Otto Kruger as a thwarted, disillusioned medico; Wallace Ford as a frolicking, "wise-cracking" interne; Henry B. Walthall as an eminent surgeon; Russell Hardie and Russell Hopeton as swift moving ambulance riders.

Specialty selected short subjects include Bert Lahr, noted stage comedian, in "Henry the Ache," Buddy Rogers and his orchestra in "New Deal Rhythm," a musical novelty, a news camera adventure film, "On Western Trails," and World News Events.

Grant Mitchell, Ray Walker, George Baxter, Vince Barnett and Henry Stephenson.

Selected short subjects on the bill include a reel on the English national sweepstakes, a musical comedy revue, "Private Lessons," with Hal LeRoy, a Merry Melody cartoon and World News Events.

BUCK'S "WILD CARGO" JOE E. BROWN TO BE IN HILARIOUS AT WEST COAST FARCE COMING

Frank Buck, dean of wild animal collectors, continues to bring 'em back alive in "Wild Cargo," the RKO-Radio camera record of his recent adventures in the First National picture. "A Very Honorable Guy," it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Alice White, diminutive blonde, was a reigning star two years ago, plays the leading feminine role. Miss White recently returned to film work and has played the leading feminine role in three pictures, "Employees' Entrance" and "Picture Snatcher" and "The Heir Chaser."

Others in the cast include Robert Barrat, Alan Dinehart, Irene Franklin, Hobart Cavanaugh, Harold Huber and the two ace song writers, Harry Warren and Al Dubin.

Joe E. Brown has the role of a gambler who is dumb as he is honest, while Alice White plays the part of a gold digging chorus girl whose affections vacillate between the gambler and a mad doctor.

In "Wild Cargo" Buck is pitted against the man-eating tiger, the enraged rhino, the king cobra, the jungle's hooded death, and the crunching orang-utan. There is but one fight, animal against animal, but there are many with Buck.

Selected short subjects include a color cartoon, "Brave Tin Soldier," a sports reel, "Winter Thrills," and World News Events.

"MURDER AT THE VANITIES" BILLED

Drama, mystery, musical hits and a fast-moving plot feature "Murder at the Vanities," latest Earl Carroll production, which combines all the elements of a successful production in a picture which will show at the West Coast theater starting Monday May 21, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Such popular players as Victor McLaglen, Jack Oakie, who insures an ample amount of comedy, Toby Wing, Kitty Carlisle and Carl Brisson. Duke Ellington and his famous dance band is a feature of the musical mystery drama.

Filmed largely in Mexico, with Wallace Beery as the star and with an exceptional supporting cast, "Viva Villa!" has emerged as one of the truly great productions of recent years.

More than 100,000 Mexican natives were used during production, as many as 6000 appearing on the screen at one time. Months were spent by the stars in the remote interior of Mexico, their only means of communication with the outside world being by airplane.

Added to the lavishness of its battle scenes and other scenes which were in newspaper headlines during the dozen years of Villa's turbulent reign, is a romantic story. Leo Carrillo, Fay Wray, Donald Cook, Stuart Erwin, George E. Stone, Joseph Schildkraut and Katherine De Mille have important parts.

Buck Jones comes again to the screen of Walker's State theater next Friday and Saturday in "The Fighting Ranger," in which he is cast as a Ranger who sets out to avenge the murder of his brother. He assumes the guise of a bandit with a price on his head and joins a gang of outlaws across the border in working out his purpose.

He assumes the guise of a bandit with a price on his head and joins a gang of outlaws across the border in working out his purpose.

Added to the lavishness of its battle scenes and other scenes which were in newspaper headlines during the dozen years of Villa's turbulent reign, is a romantic story. Leo Carrillo, Fay Wray, Donald Cook, Stuart Erwin, George E. Stone, Joseph Schildkraut and Katherine De Mille have important parts.

Luncheon to Precede Ebll Program of
Book Reviews

Chapel Given Maytime
Setting for Morning
Wedding

Preceding their program in the clubhouse auditorium Monday afternoon, at which time Mrs. Jack Valley will give book reviews, members of Ebll society will have their annual spring luncheon at 12:30 p. m. in the peacock room.

Fourth Household Economics section will serve the luncheon, for which reservations are to be made with Mrs. W. V. Whitson, 517 South Rose street, telephone 836-R, or with Mrs. A. Thordike, 1523 North Broadway, telephone 1803-W.

A special program has been arranged for the luncheon interval. Speaker will be John Vandevere Deuel of Balboa Beach, whose late book, "White Cayucos," tells of his recent adventures in South America. Vocal solos will be given by Marquise Hare. His numbers will include "I Love Life" (Manna Zucca), "The Luxembourg Gardens" (Kathleen Manning), "The Green-Eyed Dragon" (Woolsey Charles).

The 2 o'clock business session, to be conducted by Mrs. C. V. Davis, president, will be followed by Mrs. Valley's book reviews. This will be her last appearance before the group this club year.

Mrs. Valley has taken as her theme for the day, a quotation by the Unofficial Observer, "We are having a revolution and the revolutionary process will take from ten to twenty years. Nobody knows what it will lead to and nobody seems to care, which is perhaps a good thing. For revolutions have a habit of behaving pretty much as they please and of reaching their final goal against the announced will of all concerned."

The books to be reviewed include "The New Dealers," (Unofficial Observer), "On Our Way," (Franklin D. Roosevelt), "Washington and Revolutionaries, (God Roger Babson), "How Odd is God," (Lewis Browne, "Nijinsky," (Roma Nijinsky), "Old Waybill," (Alvin Harlow), "The Gorgeous Hussy" (Samuel Hopkins Adams), "Long Remember" (MacKinlay Kantor), "Journey to the End of Night" (Louis Ferdinand Celine), "Tender is the Night" (F. Scott Fitzgerald). . . .

Tea Musicale Pays
Honor to Bride
Of April

Complimenting Mrs. Ronald Crookshank, formerly Miss Beulah Dugdale, was a tea musicale given recently by Miss Helen Glancy in her home, 1525 North Broadway.

Guests were entertained by Miss Lorraine Turk, violinist, and the Misses Betty Burnham and Margaret Davies, pianists, who played from the music room, adjoining the rooms where tea was served. Guests were invited for two separate hours.

Tea was served from lace covered table, lighted with yellow tapers and centered with yellow gladioli. Assisting in pouring were the Misses Hattie Belle Wall, Marie Smith, and Billie Brucke, and Mrs. Chester Bratsch. Miss Lois Straub served the salads. Guests found their places at small tables by matching the color of glassware used with the bouquets which served as centerpieces. The bride's table carried out the traditional white theme.

The hostess presented the honor guest with a handsome table lamp in white and gold at the close of the affair.

Present were Mesdames Belle Dugdale, Frank Humphrey, Francis Hill, Norman Hicks, Chester Mallory, Abe Turk, John Lutz Jr., Charles Miles, and the Misses Stella Jackson, Helen Mott, Ruth Lee, Alma McClain, Eleanor Crookshank, the honoree, Mrs. Crookshank, and the hostess, Miss Glancy.

Sharing the event with Miss Beth were the Misses Janet McFadden, Janet Coffing, Patricia Collins, Bonnie Lewis, Marilyn Greenwald, Eloise Jacobs, Betty Matt, Norma Dass and Marian Stevens. . . .

THE MONTH OF MAY GIVES PROMINENCE TO ORANGE COUNTY BRIDES AND CLUB WORKERS

Formal Church Wedding
Is Leading Event in Fullerton Circles

That stately beauty given by palms and greenery as a background for spring's bright flowers and the use of tall cathedral candles marked the formal wedding last night in Fullerton First Christian church of Miss Harriet Mary Nixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Nixon, 225 North Cornell street, Fullerton, and Wilbur H. Stinchfield, son of Mrs. Emma Stinchfield, of Olive.

The Rev. George Stinsley read the marriage service following a musical interval closing with Lohengrin's Wedding March for the entry of the bridal party. Miss Nixon, given in marriage by her father, was very lovely in her formal gown of white satin with its misty tulle veil. Details of her costume included in addition to her arm cluster of pale pink bride roses, a touch of blue delphinium, and a shower of lilies of the valley, a brooch which had been in her family for a generation, and the "lucky sixpence," an English coin borrowed for the occasion and which she wore in her shoe according to happy traditions.

Miss Margie McLean of Whittier, in pink organdy and carrying pink roses and blue sweet peas, was honor maid. Other attendants heightened the lovely rainbow effect of the rites by their delicate organdy gowns. Mrs. Earl Ende (Josephine Neely) of Whittier, wore pale blue and carried peach colored blossoms; Mrs. Raymond Shell (Velma Heim) of Olive, orchid organdy and yellow flowers, and Miss Lucetta Barnes of Orange, pale green with pink blossoms.

Lee C. McClelland of Anaheim was best man, and ushers were Messrs. Raymond Shell and Charles Pister of Olive and Albert Haenkele of Whittier.

The wedding party was complimented at a reception which the Nixon home was garlanded with flowers, many of them arranged in May basket motif. Mr. and Mrs. Stinchfield lingered only a short time for the good wishes of their friends, then left for a short honeymoon. Their summer plans include a stay at Newport where as recent purchasers of the Newport Beach camp ground they plan to run it for the next four months then return to Olive to live on the Stinchfield ranch.

Mr. Stinchfield, who is in the employ of Lee C. McClelland at the Olive pharmacy, graduated from Orange Union High school after completing grammar school in Olive. He is prominent in athletics and is pitcher for the Santa Ana All-Stars. His bride went through Fullerton schools, with a full course at Fullerton Junior college after her graduation from high school. . . .

"Hey, stop this lamb," poor Duncy cried. "I've tried to but I slip and slide. It doesn't know I want to play, or it would act all right."

The other Times laughed in glee. "You look as funny as can be," cried Dotty. "Why not try to jerk the rope with all your might?"

"Oh, no!" said Scouty. "Wait! I am quite sure that I can catch the lamb. To jerk the rope would choke it, and then Mary would be mad."

He grabbed the beast right by the head; then patted it a bit and said, "Say, we just want to play with you. That ought to make you glad."

Just then wee Mary came along from school. She asked, "Well, what is wrong? Why are you holding my pet lamb? It's really very tame."

"Each day it follows me to school and waits here for me, as a rule." "We thought it would get lost," said Duncy. "Gee, I'm glad you came."

Then Mary to her pet lamb said, "Why don't you ever use your head? I saw you pull one of these tote around. That wasn't right."

"I'm going to take you home, right now, and I will punish you somehow. I guess I'll only give you half your evening meal to-night."

The girl then bid the bunch good-by, and shortly they heard

REPORTS GIVEN AT SESSION OF FARM CENTER

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE WILL BE KREG FEATURE

Tribute to Be Paid Mother In Broadcasts

"All that I am or ever hope to be, I owe to my Angel Mother."

These words of Abraham Lincoln form the theme of tonight's Mother's Day presentation at 7:45 on KREG and a Mother's Day tribute at 7 p.m. Sunday on the local station.

Theme music will be sung by William A Kennedy who will sing "Dear Little Mother of Mine."

The program will include an historical sketch of the life of Nancy Hanks Lincoln and of her maternal relationship with her famous son.

A new feature which promises to be among the foremost of entertaining broadcasts on the air, according to station officials, will begin a thrice weekly series of weekly coast-to-coast broadcasts over an NBC network, including KGO, on Mother's Day, at 7:30 p.m.

The noted trio composed of William Kroll, violinist; Milton Prinz, cellist, and Frank Sheridan, pianist, will feature Ravel's Trio in A during the chamber musical recital over the Columbia network, including KHJ, from 12:15 to 1 p.m., Monday.

"Masugash Nishiawki" will be the principal character whose humorous adventures in social, business and college life in America and in Japan are to be portrayed in broadcasts each Monday Wednesday and Friday at the same hour.

The identities of the characters are not being made known at the present time, nor is the name of the producer being announced, but it was stated that he is an authority on Japanese customs, speaks Japanese fluently and has an unusual amount of dramatic ability.

RADIO FEATURES

Time References Are Pacific Standard Time

The Symphonic Hour, under the direction of Howard Barlow, which for the past seven years has been a summer feature of the CBS schedule, will return to the air Sunday, over KHJ, at 11:30 a.m.

Joseph Sampietro will direct musicians of the Portland Symphony Orchestra in a special Mothers' Day concert over the Columbia network, including KHJ, at 12 noon, Sunday.

"What About God?" is the question Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick will consider at 1 p.m. Sunday, in his National Vespers address over an NBC network, including KGO and KSFD.

The first of a new series of summer band concerts by the members of the band conducted by the late John Philip Sousa will be presented over an NBC network, including KGO and KFSD, at 1:30 p.m., Sunday.

Dr. George Counts of Teachers' College, Columbia University, will consider "American Youth in the Crisis" when he speaks on Our American Schools program, at 2:30 p.m.

Jascha Heifetz, world-famous violinist, will make one of his rare microphone appearances May 12, when he plays in the Hall of Fame program, at 6:30 p.m., Sunday.

MOTHER'S DAY

Tomorrow has been set aside by presidential proclamation for the honoring of mothers throughout the land. There is no word which universally calls up so many tender memories as does the word "mother." Even individuals whose mother was not as fine as mothers are wont to be, reverence the ideal of "mother" the more tenderly because of their own lack.

There are those who fear that "Mother's Day" will be commercialized. It is for everyone to save the innate tenderness of the day from commercialization by personal attentiveness and solicitation to mothers tomorrow.

The pattern of mother to outside appearances has changed in the last fifty years. Whistler's picture of mother is familiar. We recognize the motherliness of that type. But today the duties of a mother call for some different types of service than were demanded of mother fifty years ago. Her contacts, in order to be of greatest service to her children, are more likely to be outside of the home than they were some years ago. Her services for her children have not been diminished by the new inventions, the nutritious canned foods, the well-equipped schools and play yards, the school doctor and the school nurse. In order to keep her place as guide and mentor in the lives of her children she feels the necessity of widening her scope of interests and activities far beyond those of her own mother when she was a child. There are so many demands outside of the home for the attention of the child that she is forced to exercise particular care and diligence to keep her child's interests centered in the home, where the child's character is formed.

The older mother, today, and the grandmother, are called upon in preserving the ideals of motherhood to perform different services than the parallel generation formerly. In fact, their duties are so different that the mother and grandmother is scarcely recognized in her role today, although she is still faithful to the ideal.

When a crisis comes, when there is sickness, when loneliness or some tragedy threatens the happiness of their child, the mother of today performs the same function of protector, comforter and confidant which the mother always has performed.

Throughout the land tomorrow people will honor mother for her loving gentleness, for the many kindnesses which we can remember that she did for the whole family, for the beautiful memories which she created of childhood. We also want to honor mother because of the secrets of her life. The sacrifices which she made for her children of which nobody knows, the tact and forbearance which she exerted to keep the home happy and peaceful; the things she did without in order to spare a child shame in the eyes of his fellows; for the confidences which she kept inviolate.

A little child's love is one of the most beautiful things in the world. But a mother's love is still more beautiful, for it has also compassion and understanding.

The great question is not what was said, but what was served at the momentous Dr. Wirt dinner.

DARROW REPORT TO BE MADE PUBLIC

In discussing the Darrow report the other day, we said we thought in spite of the president's decision, that it would be made public. This has now been determined.

We are rather impressed that when it is, it will not be found that it has been temporarily concealed to protect Mr. Roosevelt from any personal criticism, but rather to learn whether there was ground for the serious criticisms and accusations that may have been made in it. Oft-times able and conscientious men are stirred to the point where they lose their equilibrium in expressing their criticism concerning public legislation or its administration.

We do not know, of course, what the Darrow report contains, but we know Darrow. And just as in the case of Jim Reed of Missouri and the late Ben Tilden, we would be inclined to be cautious about accepting it at full face value, if they saw something going on which aroused their indignation.

We are rather looking forward to the publication of this report expectantly.

We know the NRA has worked out unjustly in many cases. It has worked out unjustly for many small business men, the consumer, and, by the latest reports, for the workers, to some extent.

Undoubtedly it has done great good. Which would weigh the biggest in the balance is a serious question.

Mr. Darrow will probably point out some of these difficulties, and he has done it in unsparing terms. It is rather a remarkable thing that we have a president in Franklin D. Roosevelt who would select as radical a man as Mr. Darrow, a known socialist, for a position where he would have the opportunity to present a criticism as penetrating, as cynical and as damning as Darrow would be able to present to anything which he considered rather a compromise or a half-way measure.

THE SOUR NOTE

The Register is, perhaps, as susceptible to flattery as the average newspaper. Undoubtedly it would require a stern exercise of will power for us to deny, with any degree of conviction, insinuations that this newspaper may have weight or influence in the community.

The idea of refuting such an implication would be, ordinarily, most repugnant.

But, of course, nothing is ever perfect except our climate. Even such desirable accuhave doubtful virtue. This newspaper has, in fact, while listening to certain sweet music of acclaim, suddenly detected a sour note.

There is one imputation of power and influence which The Register feels impelled to scrutinize with a fishy eye.

When an agitated citizen rouses us from bed at midnight to plead for leniency in the prosecution of an offense for which he has been arrested; assuring us that he has been told the local police would gladly reduce the felony charge of drunk-driving to a misdemeanor, but for fear that The Register would object, and say so, it not only astounds us; it makes us suspicious.

It may be, of course, that a very delicate compliment has been thus conveyed. It would be pleasing to think that this newspaper's known stand for law and order, for right government and conscientious official conduct, carried such force in the community that public officials dare not disregard their duty.

We would like to toy with that idea. We hope it is true. But, alas, we cannot help realizing that the police were merely passing the buck. They were unconscious of any compliment, in their effort to direct the resentment and dislike of the citizen toward The Register, proving indeed that our late, or early, caller had secured such word from the officials. The incident would not be noteworthy were it isolated. But the like has been occurring more or less regularly, not only with reference to the police department, but in some other branches of city and county affairs.

We have just this to say to the citizen of the midnight telephone call, and to other citizens who are told that The Register is standing between the official and the citizen, to the detriment of the citizen:

The public official should have the backbone to give the citizen the consideration that his case deserves, either on the side of leniency or on the opposite side, regardless of whether The Register or anyone else approves or objects. The citizen has no right to ask more and should insist on nothing less.

The Register may at times be standing between the official and the citizen, but it never has and never will stand between the official and his duty. Please get the full meaning of that sentence.

Frankly, we grow weary of acting as buffer for timid officials. At least we hope that if officials insist on buck passing, they do it in daylight, we want to sleep.

William H. Woodin
Christian Science Monitor

There will long remain with those who knew William H. Woodin, either during his somewhat brief career as Secretary of the Treasury in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Cabinet, or more intimately in his social and business activities, the memory of his gentleness and deferential consideration. He was not of that stuff of which ordinary politicians are made, neither was he the brusque business financier who, after all, is more the creature of fanciful fear than actuality. How differently we regard those whom we suppose to be great, and gruff, and domineering, when we come to know them and learn to love and trust them. We are able to disprove, almost daily, the old belief that "familiarity breeds contempt," by gaining a better understanding of our fellows. This better understanding begets love, confidence, and true brotherhood. Mr. Woodin contributed much to this realization.

The former Secretary of the Treasury will not go down in history as a political phrase-maker or partisan dispenser of the earned or unearned increment too often the reward for questionable service. He came in, with the present administrative regime, as a minute man or captain of quickly assembled shock troops, to safeguard private and public credit during what was an admittedly inevitable bank holiday. His service during that period and the subsequent period of reorganization and readjustment was invaluable because of his resourcefulness and absolute loyalty to the Chief Executive.

No finer tribute can be paid to any person, man or woman, boy or girl, than to say, truthfully and gratefully, that he or she is loyal. Loyalty, in the last analysis, must be actuated by cheerful obedience to the standard set up, by unselfishness, by love. He who reflects these in his daily life carries with him, as he journeys forth, we are constrained to believe, an acceptable and universally accredited passport.

Age Of Ability
Sacramento Bee

A lot has been heard of late regarding the "young liberal group" in Washington, most of it carrying the inference that this group is made up of men too young to be entrusted with affairs of any importance, or even to have sound ideas on any important subject.

Since most of these "young liberals" are in their forties that kind of thing is pretty funny. It is even funnier when you consider the age of the men who were chiefly instrumental in founding the United States of America.

For example, Thomas Jefferson was 33 when he wrote the Declaration of Independence. John Jay was President of the Continental Congress at 34, and was Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court while still in his thirties. Alexander Hamilton became Secretary of the Treasury at 32. Patrick Henry was in his thirties when he made his famous speech that all the school books quote. James Madison was a Delegate to the Continental Congress at 29. And when John Marshall was 33 he was a member of the Constitutional Convention.

Back in Revolutionary Days, this country really did have a "young liberal group," and a very good job they made of things on the whole.

What our present young liberals are going to make of their job one does not know. But certainly in the light of history they are not to be condemned merely on the ground that they are not approaching a compromise or a half-way measure.

WHY THE LION ROARS

It is tough on a hard working lion
That has to perform on the stage
To take a back seat,
When he's finished hisfeat,

In the rear of the animal cage.

His work has aroused the spectators

To salvos of eager hurrahs,

But no glory is his—

The trainer it is

Who gathers in all the applause.

If I were a King of the Jungle

And had to sit up on a shelf,

Displaying a wreath

Of large man-eating teeth.

I should crave a few plaudits myself;

And, in case they were hogged by the trainer

Extremely aggravated I would feel—

It would be just too bad,

But I'm sure that that lad

Would add zest to my afternoon meal.

To leap through a hoop is not easy

For an unquestioned Monarch of Brutes;

No beast of that kind

Was by Nature designed

For foolish and trifling pursuits.

He'll discover some day that his master

For years has been stealing his stuff,

And a lion, when riled,

Hears the call of the wild

And becomes quite annoyingly rough.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

SOCIAL EARTHQUAKE INSURANCE

I lately spent a week visiting educational institutions in a region that is visited now and then by earthquakes.

I listened with eager interest to discussions of plans by educators for the construction of school buildings that would be earthquake-proof.

In the particular cities I visited, earthquakes had not recently brought any extensive disaster to the schools. Here and there I saw mute evidence of earth tremors in cracked plaster and a missing cornice that had months before been shaken loose. Enough, however, to make schoolmen keenly aware of the necessity of building school buildings with enough "give" to them to survive earth shifts and major tremors!

In about a dozen buildings that had known the tremor of an earthquake at one time or another, I delivered a lecture on the eternal battle between inflexible tradition and flexible intelligence.

Not until I was home from my journey and had let my mind run reminiscently back over its experiences did the pertinence of that lecture in the midst of plans

ONE THING NEEDFUL

"If you could say just one thing about training children what would it be?" People like to ask teachers such questions as that, and teachers have to try to answer, because they are teachers and must do their best to forward their work. One word, even as odd a one as this must be: mighty help.

So, if I could say but one thing to those who have to do with children I think it would be something like this: Give the children a couple of healthy parents and let them—the children—alone. Given a couple of fine parents, children can manage to make out fairly well. Health makes for good nature, cooperation, willingness to go half way. Health brings out interest and inspires activity. Health establishes an abiding place for the spirit. Children who have any sort of inheritance of health and tradition are inclined to be good. That is, they are inclined to observe the rules of good conduct, to tell the truth, to observe the rights of others in relation to property, feelings and habits. Such children may get into mischief. They usually do. But they are not the sort that grow up into anti-social people. They are normal, healthy and cooperative.
